RENEWABLE ENERGY – Announces Acquisition for Intellectual Property License with ENTECH for the Caribbean

Clarington Ontario - Canadian energy developer Renewable Energy Management Inc. (REM) announced today that it acquired the ENTECH™ intellectual properties license for the Caribbean Territories.

REM's Managing Director, Stan Kinsman indicated, "There is a dire need for effective waste reduction and renewable energy throughout the Caribbean"

"REM is proud to be able to offer cost effective environmental solutions in waste management and provide clean renewable energy in areas which depend on diesel, oil or other fuel generation that contributes negatively to GHG emissions".

Under a Caribbean Corporate Entity, REM and ENTECH will design, build, own and operate energy from waste facilities in the Caribbean which provide for 100% total resource utilization of waste and dramatically reduce the carbon footprint of current practices. The Solution will maximize recycling, maximize reuse and maximize renewable energy production in ecologically sensitive areas.

New projects are currently in the planning stage of development in the Caribbean and will be announced sometime later this year.
